U. S. CALLS FOR CONFERENCE TO END GM STRIKE

Truman Approves Parley for Next Week; Co. Rejects Arbitration Bid.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT Nov 24—With President Truman's approval the federal government called on its top council stars today in an effort to effect a settlement in the far-reaching General Motors strike

The labor department drafted invitations to both sides in the 20-state strike plants calling the disputants to Washington for talks starting probably on Wednesday

Further deadlocking the dispute was the corporation's emphatic rejection of a CIO United Automobile Workers proposal for arbitration of the union's 30 per cent wage demand

The strike, idling some 200 000 workers in 54 cities was ordered Tuesday night shortly after General Motors reported its reply to the proposal would not be ready within the 24 hours allotted by the union for the purpose

Turning down the proposal last night the corporation termed it not an offer of arbitration but a demand for arbitration '

Stripped of its deception ' said H. W Anderson GM vice president, the union proposed that General Motors relinquish its rights to manage its business'

President Consulted

A short time earlier in Washington Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach emerged from a conference with the President and announced he had gone over 'the whole General Motors situation' with Mr Truman

Schwellenbach said Edgar L Warren, head of the U. S. conciliation service, would invite company and union representatives to the capital for conferences He added the Washington conference probably could not be held before Wednesday

Walter P Reuther, UAW-CIO vice president and leader of the GM wage fight said the union would send representatives General Motors withheld comment pending receipt of an invitation

Schwellenbach said he gave the President a strike report based on statements by his special assistant, John W Gibson, who conferred with union leaders here Thursday, but he declined to comment on the outlook for settlement.

GM Offer Out

A GM corporation offer of a cost of living increase estimated to average ten cents an hour, simultaneously was withdrawn with rejection of the union's arbitration proposal

The rejection came as no surprise to R J Thomas union president

If the corporation were willing to accept the principle of arbitration in any form ' he said, they would have made a counter-proposal

Picket lines were maintained at most Michigan plants today despite snow and sub-freezing temperatures

The Ford Motor Co also facing the 30 per cent demand pressed its proposal for "company security against unauthorized strikes and slowdowns

Contending more than pledges were needed the company has asked for a provision in the next contract guaranteeing financial reimbursement by the union for wildcat strikes

Settlement Not Near in Phone Strike

By The Associated Press

Labor disputes across the country kept idle 300,000 workers in addition to the huge General Motors strike list.

There appeared no indication of an immediate settlement of the six-day strike of 8,700 telephone operators in Illinois The threat of a nationwide walkout of telephone workers remained a possibility, said Joseph A. Beirne, president of the Independent National Federation of Telephone Workers.

The strike was called in support of the Independent Illinois Traffic union's demands for a $6 weekly wage increase.

In Washington, the American Federation of Labor has suspended the International Association of Machinists, its largest affiliate, after a disagreement over payment of per capita tax. An AFL spokesman said action had been taken to mediate negotiations that the IAM had been unsuccessfully endeavoring to effect with the railroads relative to payment for every day employed.

SNOW AND COLD HIT COAL STOCKS

Dealers Here Report Rush; Supplies Are Low.

Snow and suddenly lowered temperatures have aggravated an already serious coal shortage in Marion county, local dealers reported today The situation was described by Charles I Buente, president of the local dealers association, as serious, worse than last year

Dealers this year have been allotted only 80 per cent of their quota last year, Mr Buente explained Foreign shipments and the Lake ports which must be filled before freezing weather sets in have first priority and as a result Marion home owners and industries face a serious shortage

General relief is expected in January when the lake ports will be filled and foreign shipments eased and some temporary relief next week when shipments are expected to arrive here However, because of priorities and the recent coal strike, the stock piles of local dealers are very low and a few dealers have no coal at all Some orders placed in April are still unfilled.

Mr. Buente stated that every effort will be made by the dealers to distribute what stocks exist among as many of Marion's home-owners as possible. All are limiting deliveries to one to two tons per customer.

All dealers have been swamped with orders today and yesterday and Mr. Buente urges customers to order at least one week ahead. Volume of orders and shortage of labor will prevent dealers from making deliveries in any shorter time, he said.

REVEAL PLEA FOR ROOSEVELT TO AVERT WAR

Had Asked for "Secret or Public" Action Before Pearl Harbor Attack.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON Nov 24—Congressional investigators were told today that Winston Churchill asked President Roosevelt a week before Pearl Harbor to send a secret or public warning to Japan against further aggression.

A message from the then British prime minister to Mr Roosevelt was read to the senate-house committee investigating the Japanese surprise on Pearl Harbor Dec 7, 1941

Dated Nov 30, 1941 and labeled personal and secret for the President from former naval person, it said

"It seems to me that one important method remains unused in averting war between Japan and our two countries, namely a plain declaration, secret or public as may be thought best, that any further act of aggression by Japan will lead immediately to the gravest consequences.

Realizes Difficulties

I realize your constitutional difficulties but it would be tragic if Japan drifted into war by encroachment without having before her fairly and squarely the dire character of a further aggressive step I beg you to consider whether, at the moment which you judge right which may be very near, you should not say that any further Japanese aggression would compel you to place the gravest issues before congress or words to that effect.

"We would, of course, make a similar declaration or share in a joint declaration, and in any case arrangements are being made to synchronize our action with yours. Forgive me, my dear friend, for presuming to press such a course upon you, but I am convinced that it might make all the difference and prevent a melancholy extension of the war."

(Signed) "Winant"

Gerhard Gesell, of committee counsel, identified Winant as James G Winant, American ambassador to Great Britain in 1941 He explained that "former naval person was a name for Churchill selected because the prime minister formerly was first lord of the British admiralty.

Roosevelt Sent Appeal

Mr Roosevelt sent a direct personal message to Emperor Hirohito on Dec 6, the day before the Pearl Harbor attack, expressing the fervent hope that your majesty may, as I am doing, give thought in this definite emergency to ways of dispelling the dark clouds

The late president's message specifically asked for withdrawal of Japanese forces from Indo-China as an assurance of peace throughout the whole of the South Pacific area

Developments then occurring in the Pacific, Mr Roosevelt told the mikado, "contain tragic possibilities

Gesell told the committee, the Churchill message was released only last night by the British government.

Following the reading of this and another message from Churchill to Mr. Roosevelt, Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) resumed questioning of former Undersecretary of State Welles. He asked particularly about Welles' part in the White House meeting of Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill, early [illegible]

Alabama Named Sixth Time To Play in Rose Bowl Game

Pressure from Sugar Bowl, Army's Delay in Answering, Cause Early Selection of Eastern Team.

By BILL DECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24—Alabama's Crimson Tide will be the visiting team in the Rose Bowl Jan. 1.

Pressure from New Orleans' Sugar Bowl and Army's inability to give an affirmative reply to the Rose Bowl committee's feelers hurried the selection, Chairman Willis O. Hunter indicated as he announced Alabama's acceptance yesterday. It was the earliest announcement on record.

The Sugar Bowl was after the Crimson Tide almost as hot and early as the Rose Bowlers, who began to sweat when Army authorities said they would be unable to answer until after the Army-Navy game Dec. 1.

With no positive guarantee from Army, the Rose Bowl people were afraid they might lose Alabama.

Hunter quoted Frank Thomas, Alabama coach, as saying he had to notify Sugar Bowl officials before announcement of the Tide's Rose Bowl acceptance could be made. That, said Hunter, is why reports from Birmingham and points east Thanksgiving day could not be confirmed immediately.

For Alabama, undefeated and untied in seven games this year, it will be the sixth appearance in the Rose Bowl. The Tide won three, lost one and tied one in the Bowl.

Alabama's opponent will be the Pacific Coast Conference champion, which probably will be determined by the Southern California-University of California at Los Angeles game Dec. 1.

Marion Star of 90's Leaves Braves Post

Bob Quinn, above veteran baseball executive who early in his career played for a Marion team, resigned yesterday as head of the Boston Braves farm system, The Associated Press reported. Quinn is 75.

The resignation is effective Nov. 30.

Quinn came to Marion in the gay nineties and was a catcher on a semi-pro team. Marionites believe it may have been his first try at money baseball.

The elder Quinn who stepped down in favor of his son John as general manager of the Boston National league club last February said he had two offers under consideration, but he added that "to be on the square with everybody, I won't say where they are."

May Stay in Game

Asked if the offers were in baseball, Quinn grinned, "one of them is."

Bob's resignation was announced at Braves Field, where Bob took over the reins as general manager in December of 1935 after two years in Brooklyn and a decade in Boston as general manager of the American league Red Sox.

Bob caught in various leagues in Virginia New York state and Pennsylvania and at Columbus, now in the American Association.

He went with Columbus about the turn of the century and with others organized the American Association in 1903.

After 17 years in the Ohio city, where he won two pennants and finished in the first division more often than not, he went to St. Louis in 1917 and remained as general manager until 1923.

In that year he went to Boston to try to repair the ravelled Red Sox. All the Sox stars had been sold by Harry Frazee to the New York Yankees in the early days of the Ruppert-Houston regime.

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—No matter who wins tomorrow's eastern championship tussle between the Redskins and Eagles, the National Football league playoff figures to be the top football game of the season. We're not forgetting Army-Navy and the New Year's day games. What bowl promoter wouldn't mortgage the stadium if he could get Bob Waterfield, the slickest "T" quarterback we've seen, in there against Sammy Baugh's punting or Steve Van Buren's running? The 44th minor league baseball convention at Columbus, O., starting Dec. 5, will bring Prexy W. G. Bramham back to the spot where he took office in 1932. Wonder if he'll think that's a good time and place to step down?

Last Words

That Army football team which has caused so much talk this season also brings forth these questions and comments: From Carl L. Hogendorn, North English, Iowa: "Will you swear that Army is not playing the mule, too; midwesterners think so after what Blanchard, Inc., did to Notre Dame and Pennsylvania." From Eddie Travis, Newport News, Va.: "There's a guy down here who's picking Navy over Army on Dec. 1st — provided they let Navy use the Missouri and Enterprise."

In the oil business in New York since 1930, he died Thursday of a heart attack while visiting relatives here.

He played with Akron of the Ohio and Pennsylvania league and reached the big leagues when he was signed by the Yankees in 1915 as a pitcher.

Later, Carroll took an active role in formation of the Federal league and became manager of the circuit's Brooklyn team. While there, he hired Joe McCarthy, later to take over the Yankees, and was credited with building the team a million dollar park.

When the league folded, Carroll spent periods as manager with Buffalo, Montreal and Toronto. He retired from baseball in 1920.

On returning to Cleveland, he marketed some of the first auto trailers sold here.

His wife, the former Mary Ryan of Wellsville, died a number of years ago.

REDSKINS, EAGLES IN CRUCIAL PRO BATTLE

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 24 — Cleveland having won the Western title of the National Football league on Thanksgiving day, the Eastern members tomorrow will see what can be done about determining their standard bearer for the title playoff next month.

Washington, currently leading the East, moves into Philadelphia Sunday for the game that is all-important to each club in its drive for a share of the playoff cash.

The Redskins, with Sammy Baugh one of the league's best passers and Steve Bagarus giving the spectators an added thrill with his tip-toe runs down the sidelines, have a record of six wins, one defeat and three games left to play.

The Eagles, second in the sectional standings, have lost twice in seven starts. Their Steve Van Buren is the circuit's leading ground gainer with an average of 6.4 yards for each of his 88 tries.

Following Sunday's crucial clash, the Redskins must play the Pittsburgh Steelers in Washington and then entertain the New York Giants on Dec. 9. The Eagles are booked at New York on Dec. 2 and have the Boston Yanks as their guests the following Sunday.

Other games on tomorrow's card are Green Bay at New York and Pittsburgh at the Chicago Bears.

CLEVELAND'S CAGERS TO OPEN PRO SEASON

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Nov. 24—Cleveland Allmen Transfers, runner-up last year in the eastern division of the National Basketball league, face Indianapolis in their season opener at Indianapolis tomorrow night.

Twelve players are under contract to the Cleveland club and Stan Allmen, team sponsor, said three former players would return from the armed services after the first of December to push the roster up to full strength.

The Clevelanders will make their first home appearance on Dec. 2 against Youngstown.

Signed are Bruce Boehler, John Moir, John Blair, Jack Dugger, Bob Shaw, Mack Long and six holdovers from last year: Mike Bytzura, Tom Wukovits, John Mills, Bill Riebe, Ned Endress and Frank Garcia.

Election Sets Up Conservation Area in Marion County

With the election Nov. 20 of five supervisors the work of setting up the Marion county soil conservation district is completed, Arthur H. Smith, county extension agent said today.

Under an enabling act passed by the Ohio legislature in June, 1941, upon the signature of 75 or more landowners a hearing on the merits of a local district will be held. A petition bearing 300 signatures was sent to the state committee by the local extension office last April and a hearing set for July 30. The state committee ordered a referendum of Marion county landowners Sept. 7 with 65 per cent of the vote necessary before a district could be established. The yes vote carried 278 to 6.

The Marion county soil conservation district thus set up is a legally constituted unit of local government. Staffed by a board of five duly elected landowners who serve without pay, it is a cooperative of farmers run by farmers for the benefit of farmers. However, the district has no power to levy taxes, make assessments, create public debt or compel any one to do anything.

Recently elected supervisors will be charged with duties of conducting surveys and investigations and making plans for conservation of soil and water resources. They will assist farmers in such problems as timber planting, construction of reservoirs, headwater lakes, dams and farm drainage systems. Upon request, they will make soil type maps with recommendations on balancing the crop pattern.

All services, including the gathering from all sources of technical and engineering information, are performed at the request of the individual farmer. Nothing is undertaken that the landowner does not fully understand and agree to in advance. Any expense incurred is borne directly by the landowner, and he has the right to drop a project at any time.

Among the specific problems of Marion county which may be considered by the board is the rapid depletion of the underground water supply in the eastern half of the county.

Army Picked To Blast Navy by Four or Five TD's Dec. 1

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

NEW YORK — Army's All-America football team should defeat Navy by four or five touchdowns. You take the first figure if you agree with the feminine side of the Royal family and the second numeral if you side with this agent.

It's like this. Just before every Army game the past two years we've had a little guessing contest in our house on the Cadets' score. Last year, when the Military Academy eleven copped nine straight, this Royal was closer. Since the opening game of 1945—and eight more wins for the West Pointers—the missus has been nearer right.

Take Your Pick

As for the colorful contest in Philadelphia Dec. 1, with the national championship hanging in the balance, she says Army 41, Navy 13. He says Army 49, Navy 13.

At least we're agreed on Navy's score. And she probably read the 41 figure because that's the number Glenn Davis wears. Junior is her number one football rave—and every one else's if you include Doc Blanchard in the same breath.

Boy, oh boy, when you stop to think of the tacklers those ball carriers have left strewn on the ground since they started scoring record touchdowns for Army, you feel sorry for any who may have to face them in the future, including Navy.

That's not all, the Davis and Blanchard mates on the first West Point team are so good, there are football coaches who say they could beat any picked squad of All-Americas selected from the rest of the college players in the country.

Of course there are Navy rooters who hail the present Annapolis team as one of the best the Midshipmen have ever cheered. They'll have a tough time proving that one with some of the old timers who have seen some beautiful elevens on the Severn.

A Little History

Speaking of arguments, this is the time of year when Army and Navy fans really open up. If the words aren't hot about great teams, they're burning about rough games, particularly if the two debators are in opposing services.

Some of the older officers like to talk about the battle in the early nineties which has so different that the Baltimore American told of the Middie triumph and gallantly added the subhead: "No scrapping or slugging indulged in!"

Most every fan who has followed the Military-Naval series knows it started in 1890 and that the secretaries of War and Navy banned the clashes from 1894 to 1899. They said the games were developing into a war between the two services.

During the interim, the spectators actually became more unruly than the contestants. One retired rear admiral and an aging brigadier general almost fought a duel as each took the conduct of the adversaries as a personal affront.

Probably the most spectacular struggle the epic classic ever produced was the 21-21 tie played in 1926 before 110,000 (the largest crowd ever to see the teams play) in Soldiers Field, Chicago.

Plenty of Stars

Each team had great football players, fellows like Cagle, Wilson, Murrell, Saunders, Harbert, Sprague, Schmidt, Daly, Hamtoock, Born and Harding for Army; and Hamilton, Eddy, Callwell, Lloyd, Wickhorst, Shapley, Cross, Huerner, Pierce, Hardwick and Hannegan for Navy.

Twice Navy scored in the first half of that memorable game. Twice Army tallied. In the third period, it was Army and in the fourth it was Navy. Time ran out when Wilson missed a 33-yard field goal for Army in the darkness. Not one fan saw the ball but they were satisfied to leave the score 21-21 after the grueling battle.

Speaking of scores, if either of the Royals are right, 41 or 40 points for Army will be the worst beating either service team ever took from its rival. The highest previous score was made by the Cadets in 1903 when they won 40 to 5.

They advance from this into bigger shows until they hit Broadway. From there they go to Europe where they play in Paris and other famous cities before large crowds of many famous people. It tells the life of the Dolly Sisters' on the stage and of their success in America as well as on the European continent.

When he approaches the president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to get them to sponsor a show, he meets her sister, June, played by Alice Faye. Unable to get the waitress, Stella, played by Linda Darnell, off his mind, he forms a plan to get some money to win Stella, with June his victim. When murder becomes involved with Eric as the accused murderer, the trouble really begins.

MacArthur Eager To Put Tojo on Trial

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, Nov. 24 — Allied headquarters said today General MacArthur had recommended as early as Oct. 7 that Japan's wartime Premier Hideki Tojo be tried "immediately" as a war criminal — and that MacArthur was ready then and is ready now to begin the trial.

The comment followed war department announcement in Washington last night that Tojo's trial would be delayed by "international ramifications." MacArthur had proposed that the United States try Tojo through a military commission, just as Lt Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita now is being tried in Manila.

Jennifer Jones, Joseph Cotten Star in 'Love Letters' at Palace

Picture To Show Here Sunday Through Thursday; Sonja Henie Film To Close Out Week.

"Love Letters" starring Jennifer Jones and Joseph Cotten will be shown Sunday through Thursday at the Palace theater.

Jennifer Jones plays the leading role in the film which tells the story of a girl withdrawn in herself who is suffering from amnesia brought on by an intense emotional shock. She is trying to break down this wall which her mind has erected and which has made her forget everything of her past. Something warns her that at some future time incidents she does not remember will all come back to her.

She meets Joseph Cotten who restores her memory by a slow gentle prodding of her inner thoughts. Her memory returns completely and her imagination reconstructs the terror of the moment when she found herself setting by the fireplace with a blood-stained knife in her hand and the love letters burning in the flames. Mystery and suspense arise out of this episode.

A Pete Smith cartoon, a sports picture and the latest Paramount news will be shown with "Love Letters."

A technicolor musical, "It's A Pleasure," starring Sonja Henie and Michael O'Shea, will be shown Friday through Saturday.

Sonja Henie is cast as a small time exhibition skater who progresses to big time, finds and loses her love on the way and wins him all over again in the happy ending. Michael O'Shea plays a happy-go-lucky hockey ace who marries Sonja in the hope of forming a successful team on a small time ice show circuit. His temperament, however, puts him out of the company and the romance falters until a climax restores them to a reunion.

Short features to be shown with this film are "Purity Squad" which is a crime drama and the news of the day.

Canada was a French colony until 1763, when it was ceded to the British by the treaty of Paris.

STRIKES CHILL STOCK BUYERS

Motors, Steels, Other Leading Industrial Issues Take Setbacks Today.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—Strikes and threat of strikes again chilled investment sentiment in today's stock market.

While dealings were relatively sluggish, leading motors, steels, rails and pivotal industrials suffered further declines of around two points at the worst. Scattered recoveries from the lows were in sight near the close.

Bedrish implications were seen in the General Motors-U.A.W. stalemate, notwithstanding expectations Washington might intervene. A possible walk-out in the communications field also inspired a certain amount of liquidation. Refusal of the OPA to grant a steel price increase at this time persisted as a handicap for the metals.

On the offside most of the time were General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Chesapeake & Ohio, American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Goodyear and Dow Chemical.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

"NOT in so many words," I told Katharine. "He didn't mention Mary's name specifically. But he was most solicitous in his desire to see everybody else again and bid them another good-bye."

I was at the door as I spoke, with my hand on the knob.

"I will tell you all when I come back," I promised.

Closed Door Quickly

"You'd better!" my husband warned darkly, and I closed the door quickly for fear Georges, on the next landing, might hear the laughter, even though it were subdued, which followed me out into the hall.

I hurried over to the stairs and up them, finding Georges pacing up and down the corridor, with Gus watching him anxiously and also keeping a wary eye on the stairs and elevator.

Georges had his back to me, and I spoke prison-fashion to Gus as I passed him.

"Have you seen anybody up here?" I asked.

"Not a soul," Gus replied, adding uneasily: "Not yet."

Georges turned at that instant, and strode rapidly toward me. I walked to meet him, carefully keeping my back to Gus, and when I was close to him, I let him see the papers in my hand.

Four of Them

"There are four of them here," I murmured, "so do not count them. Try to take them from my hand without Gus seeing you. I have folded them into small compass, so you can stuff them into your pocket without his noticing, when you get an opportunity."

"Thank you," he said, and his hand closed over the papers, holding them so skillfully that no one could have detected his having them. Then, with that hand beneath my elbow, he brought me back to where Gus was standing by the elevator.

"I will escort you down to your door," he said, with the gallantry which is as natural in him as his breath.

"You will do nothing of the kind," I said peremptorily, then flushed as I saw the intolerance in his eyes, although not a muscle of his face had moved.

Ought to Know

"I'm sorry, George, to be so abrupt," I said, "but you ought to know why I want you to take the elevator from this floor. Please do not delay in getting back to my father. I will go back to my own apartment now. Good-bye again, and God bless you!"

I held out my hand to him, and he kissed it warmly.

"Thank you for everything," he whispered. "And please don't forget to give Mary my last message."

I won't!" I assured him, again resisting the impulse to snatch my hand away and give him a farewell cuff on his ears.

But I retrieved the hand with leisurely dignity, and started for the stairs, after exchanging perfunctory farewells with Gus.

"That's right, Gus," I heard Georges say as I was half way up the stairs. "Push the button again. We've got to get out of here."

Three Expectant Faces

I echoed the sentiment as I reached my own door without meeting anyone in the hall. And when I had unlocked it and closed it after me, seeing the three expectant faces in the sitting room, I felt as if I just had finished a race, but needed time to get my breath.

"Give me one minute," I pleaded, sinking into a chair facing them, and closing my eyes. "Then I'll begin to chant the saga."

"Oh, we understand, old dear!" my husband said airily from his wheel chair. "Farewell interviews with Glamorous Georges are apt to be emotionally exhausting."

I opened my eyes long enough to give him what I hoped was a credible imitation of a baleful glare, then closed them again.

"One more word out of you," I said," and you go straight into the bedroom with your face against the wall, while I tell Jack and Katharine what you are so anxious to hear."

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M. D.

Thrombophlebitis

Milk leg is the common name for a disorder that has nothing to do with milk. Doctors call it thrombophlebitis, which means the formation of a blood clot in a vein, together with some inflammation.

The symptoms of thrombophlebitis vary to a great extent and, in the mild cases, may be so slight that the condition is not recognized. The patient may complain, however, of a vague aching in the legs on standing or on prolonged activity. At times there may be some slight swelling of the leg.

There is no fever or increase in the pulse rate. The patients often have a desire to keep their legs raised, since they find that doing so lessens the discomfort. Upon examination it may be found that there is some tenderness in the muscles of the calves.

According to Doctor D. Rees Jensen of New York, there also may be some tenderness of the sole of the foot. Activity tends to make the symptoms worse.

The more severe cases of thrombophlebitis usually develop following some surgical procedure or some infection. The condition starts with mild pains in the calves, on the sole of the foot, or in the middle part of the thigh. Bending the foot backward frequently makes the pain in the calf worse. There is usually some swelling of the tissues, together with fever and rapid heart beat. Sometimes there is a slight chilling.

One of the dangers of thrombophlebitis is that a bit of the blood clot may break off, get into the circulation, and land in the lung. This is known as a pulmonary embolus. It will produce a sudden pain in the chest with shortness of breath and coughing, and there may also be fever and more rapid heart beat. An X-ray of the chest makes it possible to diagnose the condition.

Doctor Jensen believes that in the chronic or long-continued cases of thrombophlebitis, treatment with rest, heat and massage is of little value. He thinks that injection treatment of the large veins above the area affected by the condition will bring about a rapid cure. There are many physicians, however, who may not favor this form of treatment. The doctor will decide in each instance just what treatment should be employed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. M.: Would you advise sulfathiazole ointment for varicose ulcers?

Answer: Sulfathiazole ointment may be found helpful in certain varicose ulcers. A physician, however, would have to determine in each individual case whether it would be useful, or whether some other type of treatment might be more beneficial.

(Dr Bundesen will answer letters containing medical questions only through his column)

VFW FILES PROTEST

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov 24 – The Veterans of Foreign Wars complained today that World War II veterans made idle by the General Motors strike are being denied unemployment compensation under the G. I. bill of rights. "Protests are pouring in," a VFW spokesman said. "Some of the veterans report they had just gone to work, others that they had not joined the union."

Canada comprises more than 28 per cent of the total area of the British empire.

WHY WASTE COAL?

One of a series of articles intended to help solve heating problems and conserve fuel

There is no cause for concern if during mild weather, the ash in your stoker-fired furnace fails to clinker. Failure to clinker is due to the fact that your fire has been kept at low temperature, and then only for short periods of time. Usually the ash will accumulate and simply make the coal bed thicker. As soon as the temperature drops and your thermostat calls for a hotter fire the accumulated ash will turn to clinker and can be readily removed.

If the ash does not clinker under the above circumstances, it is a simple matter to cause it to do so. Just set the air feed wide open and operate the stoker continuously for 20 to 30 minutes. This will cause the fuel bed to burn down and the ash to be fused into clinkers.

If it is possible on your particular make of stoker to disengage the coal feed during this continuous running time, it is better to do so although it is not absolutely necessary. The stoker may be set on the lowest coal feed or the coal may be fed normally during this time without harmful results. This method is much simpler, cleaner, and quicker than attempting to remove loose ash.

This procedure may temporarily raise the temperature of the living quarters a few degrees. However, if it is done early in the morning or in the evening the temporarily increased temperature will not be uncomfortable.

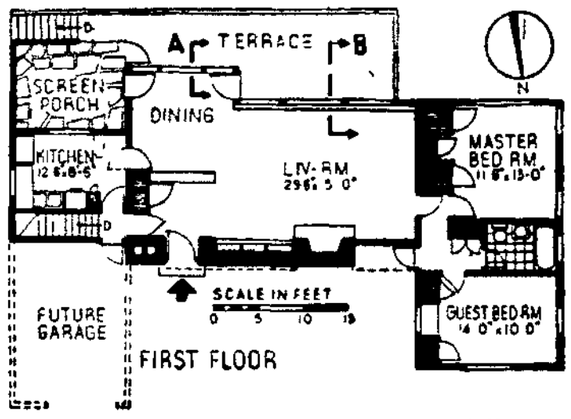
HOMES FOR AMERICANS



By The Associated Press

This house designed by Pomerance and Breines, New York architects (18 East 48th St.), is oriented to the south. A carefully designed roof overhang permits solar heating in winter and shade for the living room in the summer. Large windows from floor to ceiling in the living and dining areas take full advantage of the view in the location overlooking the Hudson. The architects say the design calls for at least a half acre lot and the cost of construction was approximately $8,500. The roof holds a one-and-one-half-inch film of water to reflect solar heat in summer. Snow accumulations serve as added insulation in winter when the water is not used. The roof is designed to permit free circulation of air through it at all times. Interiors offer a blend of modern and traditional forms. The slope of the site was utilized to minimize excavation.

Future Homes—No Miracles

Comfort and Economy To Get Most Attention Without Many Drastic Changes.

While architects and builders are planning many innovations for the postwar home, they are promising no miracle houses in which push buttons will do all the work.

American dwellings of the near future, they agree, will be more livable than ever, but they will look and behave very much like the best pre-war houses.

Most of the improvements will result from the use of improved materials and more efficient designs.

These factors will produce a house that is more comfortable, and more economical because a functional home gives the owner double or even triple service for his given amount of space.

Among the features which builders say will undergo an evolution—but not a revolution—are:

Style—A trend toward simple and modern one-story homes similar to those built immediately before the war.

Design—Houses will be designed to fit their functions, instead of vice versa. Thus square and rectangular outlines will give way to those that enclose the functional layout, regardless of shape.

Decorations—These will be simple and bright, in harmony with the natural and artificial lighting effects. Panels of glass block will allow more and better daylight.

Lots—Because designs will ramble, lots must be larger. This will eliminate the cramped effect of city living and invite more outdoor relaxation.

Basement—In moderate climates, basements will be omitted; in cool latitudes, they will probably remain.

Garages—To provide additional storage space, garages will be larger and will be connected to or made a part of the house.

Kitchens—For functional living, kitchens will be larger, will contain more storage and informal dining space. Appliances and work areas will be scientifically grouped to save steps.

Dining Rooms—These will become smaller and in many cases will be merged with the living room. Waist-high partitions of glass block will separate the two functions of a dining-living room.

Living Room—As the family center of the house, the living room will be made more liveable with built-in furniture, nooks, and bookcases. Through large windows and panels of lustrous glass blocks, more natural daylight will stream in.

Bedrooms—Will be larger and more extensively furnished for double duty as private sitting rooms. Window seats, large closets and built-in wardrobes will provide more storage space.

Bathrooms — "Department-ized" bathrooms, which permit several persons to use the room at one time, will be popular. Here again glass block will be used to separate the various fixtures to insure complete privacy without sacrificing daylight. Built-in dressing tables and cabinets will be commonplace.

Lighting—Wider use of fluorescent lighting is certain. Fixtures will be designed and placed for highest efficiency without glare, more indirect lighting will be used.

Heating — Automatic heating with coal stoker, oil or gas is assured. Radiant heating and winter-time air-conditioning will be more widely used. Also complete weatherstripping and insulation.

Although none of the predictions involves revolutionary changes in present-day home designing, few postwar homes will embody all of them. In low and medium-priced houses the improvements will come gradually.

WEED KILLER ONLY PARTLY EFFECTIVE

COLUMBUS, O.—The enthusiasts call 2,4-D the 'magic weed killer' but Professor C. J. Willard says a period of experimentation with his material indicates part of the "magic" is caused by illusion and that his experiments to date indicate 2,4-D is very effective in removing weeds from lawns and also will kill some kinds of weeds which are problems for farmers.

In getting dandelions out of lawns Professor Willard finds 2,4-D is about 100 per cent effective. Applied as a spray, with 1,000 or 1,500 parts of 2,4-D to 1,000,000 parts of water, the material kills the tops and roots of dandelions but does not discolor or harm the grass of the lawn.

The spray also is quite effective in killing buckthorn and broad-leaved plantain and the application will take out the white clover and the yellow trefoil in the lawn. It does not kill crabgrass or other coarse grasses that are troublesome in lawns.

Professor Willard's biggest disappointment with 2,4-D has been its failure to kill Canada thistles. The spray destroys the thistle but the roots send up new shoots after repeated applications of the spray. The material kills bindweed, artichokes, winter cress, most of the mustards, chickory, wood-sorrel, elderbery and some others but fails on milkweeds, beard-tongue, spurges and most of the dock family.

Trials of 2,4D on poison ivy have varied in results. Part of the time ivy was killed and in other trials the ivy lived, and Professor Willard has not found the reason for the variation. A way to apply the spray so it always will kill poison ivy may be found.

The Hall of Fame stands on the campus of New York university.

DULL FINISH ON TABLE

Question. The finish on my dark walnut dining table has recently taken on a dull, milky appearance. I have used wax polish on it for years, and this milky look has been coming gradually. Otherwise the surface is in fine condition, no scratches or marring. Please tell me what to do.

Answer. The milky look is probably due to the accumulation of wax and dust. It would be best to remove it which you can do by wiping with a cloth damp with turpentine. After taking off the wax you can then see what the actual condition is. If good, polish with paste wax or furniture polish. To refinish the top give it a light sanding and dusting and then apply two coats of top quality, quick-drying varnish, either gloss or semi-gloss. The first coat should have a light sanding and dusting. For a really good job have the work done by a cabinet maker. For a dining table the quick-drying varnish will be preferable to wax as it is resistant to heat and liquids.

Q. How can I take the squeaks out of bed springs? I've tried everything, but no luck.

A. The squeaking may be in the bedstead as well as in the springs. For a wooden bed, melt some paraffine and pour a little of the liquid into the joints of the bedstead. (As paraffine is inflammable do not melt it over a flame; melt it over hot water.) In hardening the paraffine will act as a lubricant and silence the squeaks. For a metal bed and for springs, squirt a few drops of oil, turpentine or kerosene at every point where one piece of metal touches another. Then bounce the springs several times so that the oil will work into the joints. Wiping the excess off will help to prevent the mattress from becoming stained.

Quiet Returning To Riot-Torn Calcutta

By The Associated Press

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 24—United States Army headquarters announced today 30 American soldiers had been hurt, five seriously, in Indian anti-British demonstrations in Calcutta. One man was missing.

They said no Americans had been reported killed up to this morning.

Those seriously injured suffered principally from head wounds incurred when Indian demonstrators hurled stones at them. The demonstrators were protesting the trial of Indian National army personnel who sided with the Japanese during the war.

In Calcutta for the first time since the rioting started Wednesday there were no major outbreaks, and quiet gradually was being restored to the city.

MacArthur Lets Japs Open Import Trade

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, Nov. 24 — General MacArthur today granted the Japanese government permission to import food, cotton, petroleum and salt — clearing the way for revival of foreign trade.

An Allied headquarters press release said neither extent nor sources of the imports in 1946 has been determined. Amounts will depend upon availability of shipping and world supplies as well as Japan's ability to pay in commensurate exports.

Sankuro Ogasawara, minister of commerce, on Nov. 14 revealed the Japanese government had applied for permission to import 3,000,000 tons of food, mostly from North America; 180,000 tons of cotton, and 1,130,000 tons of coal.

A statement, by Lt. Col. H. G. Harding, British provost marshal, also said Dutch and Amboinese troops of the 10th Dutch battalion shot down 60 Indonesian police "in cold blood" in the Indonesian central police station in Batavia a few days ago.

The British used naval and artillery fire in repulsing 1,000 armed Indonesians in Semarang yesterday.

Doomed 4-Year-Old Has Christmas Early

By The Associated Press

NILWOOD, Ill., Nov. 24 — Harlan Lair, curly-haired four-year-old whose Christmas came early because he is very sick, played with his Christmas dinner yesterday.

Harlan's tears brought a reprieve of the death sentence for a big turkey. The family ate duck and preserved the gobbler as a pet.

Harlan is suffering from lymphatic leukemia.

Well-wishers, hearing of the premature celebration which was held because the boy may not live to greet Santa's official arrival next month, sent six rocking horses, the one gift he had expressed a desire for.

New Owners Must List Rented Houses

Landlords who bought rented homes after the houses were originally registered at the Marion rent office and are continuing to rent them must file a change of ownership report, Edward F. Wagner, area rent director, reminded landlords today.

A report must be filed by the new landlord at the OPA rent office within 30 days after the change in ownership takes place.

This requirement will enable the OPA rent office to keep its ownership records currently accurate, Mr. Wagner explained.

Many new landlords in this rental area will have to file these forms because of the large number of sales of rental houses in Marion recently, he said.

Forms may be obtained by landlords at the OPA rent office, located at 169½ East Center street.

YANKS SMASH JAPS' ATOMIC MACHINES

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, Nov. 24 Japan was stricken from the field of atomic research today as American soldiers armed with sledge hammers and blow torches started the destruction of five cyclotrons—one of them a 200-ton giant made in the United States.

The cyclotrons, ordered destroyed by General MacArthur in another blow at Japan's war-making potential, will be broken up and the pieces dumped into the seas.

Two of them—the 200-ton apparatus bought in America through the assistance of Prof. Ernest O. Lawrence, famed University of California physicist, and a smaller one—were in the laboratory of Dr. Toshio Nishina at Tokyo.

Nishina, 55, dean of Japan's nuclear physicists, was "heartbroken" when American officers told him his huge cyclotron was to be demolished, the scientists' secretary said.

American officials had taken over the Japanese laboratories and studied records of Nipponese research into atomic power, but not until today did the Japanese imperial government and the scientists learn the apparatus was to be destroyed.

American scientists said Japan's progress toward developing the atomic bomb had been of no importance.

The Japanese scientists explained Nipponese militarists had shown little interest in the destructive potentialities of the atom until too late.

Prof. Bunsako Arakatsu, head of the physics department at the Kyoto imperial university, said that last May or June naval officials ordered him to proceed with experiments to determine the possibility of chain reaction in the splitting of the atom.

The Navy sent him 16 boxes of uranium compound which was never used, Arakatsu said. He expressed doubt whether there was enough uranium oxide in all Japan to make one successful test chain reaction.

OPA DRIVES TO KEEP FOOD PRICES DOWN

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24—OPA launched an intensified drive today to keep food prices in check as meat, butter and all other red-point products came off the ration list.

George Moncharsh, chief of OPA's enforcement department, predicted it would be a "somewhat more difficult" job to hold prices now that rationing has ended.

He said, however, that OPA is "all set" to crack down on any violators of price ceilings.

Investigators have been transferred from other OPA price programs to augment the regular staff assigned to see that ceilings on meats and fats are observed.

Moncharsh said OPA expects the job to be toughest in areas remote from meat, butter and other food production centers.

"Under rationing," he explained, "points were set to assure even distribution. This helped to ease the pressure on prices.

"Now that rationing is out, we have to guard against any bidding up of prices to obtain supplies in potential shortage areas."

The biggest task, the enforcement chief added, will be policing prices for pork, butter, margarine, lard, shortening and salad and cooking oils, since supplies of these products are expected to remain short of demand for awhile.

Power of Example

NEVER were two military appointments greeted more cheerfully than those of Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz as chief of naval operations. These are appointments in support of a good United States men.

The men they succeed, George C. Marshall and Ernest J. King, were two of the ablest chiefs of staff perhaps the nation has ever had in our history, but neither had the benefit before appointment of wartime job experience.

During the war Gen. Marshall and Admiral King worked in relative obscurity in Washington while millions of Americans were learning to know and admire Gen. Eisenhower and Admiral Nimitz for their brilliant coordination of American fighting strength from our advanced bases. Few chiefs have come to the great responsibilities of the post with actual experience in wartime administration. The omen for success is bright for both men.

The people's gratitude for the competence of the men they replace now becomes hope for an amicable settlement of the issue of unified control of the nation's fighting services. Gen. Marshall and Admiral King were obliged to fight a great war with makeshift coordination; it is to their credit that they were able to achieve any coordination at all. Gen. Eisenhower and Admiral Nimitz have inherited a problem grown so acute as the result of intolerable frictions, divergencies, oversights, duplications and wastes that the public is demanding solution. During their leadership in war, both men demonstrated that unity of command can be achieved in the field. During the years ahead, both men can demonstrate by power of example that unity of command also can be achieved in Washington. Gen. Eisenhower is in favor of it. Admiral Nimitz also has favored it, though lately he has changed his mind. With the new chief of the Air Forces, whoever it may be, there should be unity on this paramount issue of military policy.

Two-Party Government

IT IS unlikely the special committee studying modernization of congress will obey its impulse to recommend official establishment of the two-party system in congress. The committee's interest in this proposal to lay down party lines where voters can see them and legislators can be measured by them is probably academic.

Still, it is interesting—this possibility of giving official status to one of the fundamentals of American life. We are accustomed to believe and to say that the two-party system is invaluable, but to act as if it were an imposition on our good nature when asked to register, to participate in primaries and to support one of the two parties.

If the two-party system had something more than nominal status, it could resist corruption by its natural enemies—the organized minorities and the minor political parties that are dedicated to its destruction. There probably could be no such thing, for instance, as an alliance between Democrats and Communists in New York City, no such thing as an alliance between a labor union and Democrats in Detroit. The Democratic party could lay down a party line in behalf of all its members that would exclude vote-cadging by local organizations. The United States could have the benefit of two-party government in fact, as well as in name.

But as far as that's concerned, if the United States made private enterprise its official economic line it could have the benefit of that in fact as well as name, too. As it is, in party politics and economics, the line of least resistance is to pretend that consistency can be violated with impunity—a form of self-deception that so far has produced deficit financing and the virtual collapse of the two-party system.

Back to Fundamentals

THE most curious fact about collective bargaining in the United States is that no one knows what it is despite the fact it has been a legally guaranteed right to labor unions since the national labor relations act became law on July 5, 1935.

The act's origin was Section 7-A of the national industrial recovery act, which guaranteed employes the "right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing . . . free from the interference, restraint, or coercion of employers of labor, or their agents . . . etc." This statement was carried over intact into the labor relations act and to it was added a federal prohibition against five unfair labor practices. These were all negative. As proved by experience, the labor relations act has suffered consistently from lack of affirmative direction to organized labor and employers. It has expressly forbidden certain things, but has not expressly ordered anything. Thus, collective bargaining is still subject to such wild experimentation as that now witnessed in the automobile and steel industries, where union spokesmen first state all the conditions, deliver an edict that automatically bars any possibility of round-table discussion, then castigate management for refusal to bargain collectively.

The courts have held broadly that collective bargaining compels nothing but consent to meet together. Either the union or management may refuse to accede to the other viewpoint or demands; an agreement cannot be forced on either party by anything in the labor relations act.

Mr. Eden on Atomic Bomb

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Ideas of Sovereignty Threat in New Era.

SPEAKING in the house of [illegible] Mr. Eden made a notable contribution to the problem that will arise from atomic energy. But we are not yet clear about the kind of world organization we will agree that we must create to regulate, control and inspect atomic energy. Mr. Eden's idea is that within each national state the supreme authority. The [illegible] abatement [illegible] should be worked out.

Students of government, and particularly of our own constitutional history, will recognize that this is a question about which a great deal is already known. We must use what we know if we are to find out what we do not yet know but need to know. The men who developed the atomic bomb did not start from scratch; they drew upon the vast store of scientific knowledge accumulated over generations. In developing the political control of the atomic bomb, we too, can go forward into the unknown only by starting from what is known.

There are now two main schools of thought as to how to modify national sovereignty in order to control atomic energy. The one, to which Mr. Eden belongs holds that the national states should renounce their veto under the San Francisco charter, agreeing to be bound by the decisions and judgments of a majority of other national states. The other school, which seems to me the wiser, is seeking ways to make the rules regulating the production and use of atomic energy binding upon individuals.

Notion Disputed

I believe it can be demonstrated that this is the true principle by which sovereignty can be, as Mr. Eden puts it abated.

A writer who conducts a column in a New York newspaper seems to be under the impression that while this second line, which I argued for in a recent article, "sounds persuasive," it is really a half-baked notion which would not stand examination by "authorities on international law." The matter is much too important to be brushed off in this fashion, and so I am venturing to remind him and the authorities on international law whom he has consulted of certain political truths which they ought to remember.

These truths are stated most clearly in the "Federalist" papers, No. 15, which is attributed to Alexander Hamilton, though there can be no doubt that Madison and Jay, and indeed all the founding fathers held the same view. Nothing that has been said in our contemporary discussion of the atomic bomb, of the San Francisco charter and of the Truman-Attlee-King proposals pose the real issue so clearly.

It is this: "If we still adhere to the design * * * of a superintending power, under the direction of a common council, we must resolve to incorporate into our plan those ingredients which may be considered as forming the characteristic difference between a league and a government; we must extend the authority of the Union to the persons of the citizens—the only proper objects of government." Without a firm grasp on this proposition, without a clear understanding of the difference between a league and a government, the discussion of national sovereignty and atomic energy is bound to be confused and abortive.

Mr. Eden's own proposal is an illustration. He is trying to make a league of sovereign states behave as if it were a world government. [illegible] to prove that this [illegible] Mr. Eden's plan is [illegible] a majority of states the right to coerce a minority of [illegible] proposal. George Mason of Virginia said this to say in the Philadelphia convention, a hundred and fifty years ago: Punishment could not in the nature of things be executed on the state collectively, and therefore that such a government was necessary as could directly operate on individuals, and would punish those only whose guilt required it."

James Madison, speaking on the same question, said that "the use of force against a state would look more like a declaration of war than an infliction of punishment, and would probably be considered by the party attacked as a dissolution of all previous compacts by which it might be bound."

This is, I submit, very high authority, and the truth that government begins when it operates on individuals, is as well tested and as fundamental a principle as any which exists in the whole field of law and statecraft.

If we are serious about controlling atomic energy, and about instituting an authority which shall for that purpose be superior to the national sovereignties, then we cannot ignore this principle, or brush it aside as novel, interesting perhaps, but amateurish. There is no other way to abate national sovereignty except to bring individual persons within the jurisdiction of a supranational authority. Anything else than that leaves national sovereignty intact, and all international law, so-called, subordinate to, not superior to, the national state.

I hold, therefore, that in setting up rules about atomic energy, the first step to take is to declare them binding upon individuals. If that is done, then no government will have any longer the legal right to order a citizen to violate the rules, or to protect him if he violates them. There will be no defense, as there is now in the Nuernberg trial, that the crimes were done by order of the national state, which is sovereign, and that the violator, if apprehended, is therefore immune.

Obviously, there will still remain the grave difficulty of catching and arresting the violators of the laws about atomic energy. If the violators were protected by a great power, it would require a great war in order to arrest them. But that is equally the case under Mr. Eden's plan, or any other system of "collective security."

The great advantage of making a violation an individual crime is that the violation of the law by a state planning aggression would then be much more difficult. Every scientist, engineer, staff officer and official who participates in the violation will be on notice that, if caught, he will have no immunity. That is an impressive risk, which would exist for each one of them not only in the event that his country was defeated but also during the period when his government was preparing for aggression.

Furthermore, the fact that the crime had been made personal would mean that the opposition in any country, the individual scientists or public men who wished to prevent atomic war, could count upon a high degree of protection from the law-abiding states. It would be difficult to punish them for refusing to break the law, if their own government sought to coerce them, their case could at once be brought before the United Nations Organization.

How would the aggressor state defend itself if it were punishing one of its citizens for refusing to violate the international law? Would not such coercion of its own citizens be prima facie evidence that it was conspiring against the peace of the world?

Author of the Week

By W. G. Rogers

Associated Press Book Reviewer

IDWAL JONES made up his novel, "High Bonnett," out of good food, fine wine and rare dishes, and the proof of the pudding is in the reading. He has been engineer, rancher, miner, newspaperman, publicity writer, Cordon Bleu Chef of the Wine and Food Society of Los Angeles and author of several other books. He owes his name, one part usual and one part not, to his Welsh birth.

This is a novel in form, roughly, but the form is only an excuse to writing about good food and it's a better excuse than many novelists think up. The author makes a library out of kitchen, pantry and cellar, he makes a chef decorare out of a chef.

IDWAL JONES

The story had to be laid, of course, in France. Jean-Marie Gallois gives up the sea for sauces and soups, becomes a sculptor in cake icings though he is disappointed in an affair of the heart, what matters to him most is stomach.

Though [illegible] is a fairly dramatic climax, even to bombs, the body of the book tells you how to make 7 o'clock[illegible] sauce for Peches Gitan, you have the pleasure of dining with the Council of Ballat, and kidneys are described so eloquently that reading is as good as a meal.

To make [illegible]-pagned stock you [illegible] "lumps of beef, some veal, fried brown with the [illegible] bones, roast fowl carcasses, tomatoes, carrots, onions, bay leaves, peppercorns, allspice, celery, thyme, marjoram and savory, chervil and a pinch of [illegible] Savoy cabbage [illegible] and keep it at a simmer for a day. After an integration [illegible] is passed through a fine sieve."

The book is full of smells, tastes, sounds. Chefs, you learn, eat out at least the most famous places that always serve the best food; a clean kitchen is no more proof of delectable dishes than a clean studio of great paintings; a meat vault is a morgue; an amateur chef is as dependable as an amateur surgeon.

There are such cheeses as Vert-adour, Thome de Savoie, Cantal, Parmesan; coffee with the flavor of orange peel, ptarmigans roasted with a vine-leaf shield, Minerva cockscombs braised for Ehingdale sauce. And you'll enjoy your soup all the more if the [illegible] at the next table is eating a tangerine.

This is a book for men as well as women, and it's a point in its favor that food supplies are becoming more plentiful.

Can Truman Keep Hands Off?

By Raymond Moley

PRESIDENT TRUMAN will have lots of trouble keeping hands off in the General Motors strike. The magnitude of this struggle, the resources and the extreme commitments on both sides point to a national situation of such gravity that only the federal government will be capable of dealing with it, not to say of settling it. Sooner or later, Mr. Truman and his associates will be deep in the picture, and all political calculations for the next year will be affected by what results.

As this column has pointed out repeatedly, an effort to differentiate among industries as to the amount of wage increases to be favored will lead to a jungle of tangled relationships. Modern industry is so inter-related and General Motors is so big that what happens will affect national industry as a whole. Moreover, the General Motors market is so broad that vast numbers of the population will feel price increases. And the people thus affected will include almost all farmers and white-collar workers—not too sympathetic to the demands of a rich union like the U. A. W. The administration will be dealing with economic and political principles which may affect American life for years to come.

Basic Flaw

What is more, an effort to generalize wage increases will draw attention to a basic flaw in the UAW demand. The high average employment in manufacturing industries was not 48 hours. It was 45.6 hours in December, 1944, according to the manpower commission statistics. It was 44 hours last July. This means that a cut to 40 hours would involve much less than a 30 per cent cut in wages. It should also be kept in mind, when comparisons of living costs are involved, that in 1938 the average weekly employment in representative industries was 34.3 hours and in 1939 it was 37.6 hours.

The pity of the administration's position is that, while it is well aware of the political circumstances recited above, it seems to have no fixed position on the more significant economic problems involved. But that is the way with all pure political thinking, and this administration is probably the most politically-minded in history. Political thinking deals with the shadows of things, not things. It deals with the complex and confused public thinking about situations not with the situations themselves.

Move Ahead

In foreign affairs, for example, an enormous number of facts must be mastered before we take our stand and shape our policies. The public has limited access to these facts. Great secretaries of state and presidents have always moved ahead of public opinion, and the people at large have taken their opinions from their statesmen. But Mr. Byrnes, despite his many fine qualities, is waiting for signs from the public before forming his judgments and making his commitments. To put an old saying in a new way, he is keeping his ear so close to the grass-roots that he can hear the beating of a meadow-mole's heart.

Mr. Truman cannot solve this labor crisis by any political yardstick. It involves economic facts and economic statesmanship. To illustrate this, it should be pointed out that the essence of the UAW's demand that production costs be given to the public will inevitably tend to break down competition in the greatest of competitive industries. Such a pooling of information as would be involved would force mergers—in short, force a cartelization of automobile production through the force of a union which encompasses all the bigger companies and their subsidiaries. This single fact is one of the many which the President must face. And it cannot be examined through a political telescope.

Note on Democracy

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON—A senator recently back from South America reported one of his friends there was puzzled over the U. S. political system.

"Tell me, Senator," he said—"Why is it that when President Roosevelt died the Republicans did not seize power?"

"I guess it just never occurred to them," he said.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

LETTERS from a Homefronter to a Sailor Son No. 4

Dear Son:

Well, the situation on the homefront is very similar, and we sure do envy you the peace and quiet you are having in the war zones. We are happy that you are safe in uniform and things are O. K. abroad. We wish we could say the same about the United States, which is the scene of nearly fighting anywhere you go.

* * *

Peace broke out in Stamford, Detroit, Buffalo, Chicago, Staten Island and on more buses last week, and there has been nothing like since Gettysburg.

* * *

The fighting in Washington has extended along the Potomac, and is growing more desperate by the hour. Something called the labor management conference is being held there, and it is one of the most battles of all time. The shelling can be heard for miles, and is rattling windows and shaking dishes off shelves as far away as Boston, Mass.

* * *

Every time a session of this conference called to order both sides lay a terrific barrage. President Truman was asked to fight his way through and make another plea to it, but replied it was a job for the Marines, and that merited a D.F.C. for going there the first time.

* * *

Gen. Hagis surrendered unconditionally down in New Orleans, a lot of industrialists have been surrounded everywhere and a curfew may be declared to keep customers, middlemen, reconversion planners, blueprinters and innocent by-standers off the streets after dark.

* * *

A lot of business men are equipping their offices with radar to detect approaching ulterior motives, but little success is reported, as they become too fat.

* * *

The streets are full of soldiers and sailors who came back from Europe and Asia thinking they were getting out of a war, and they are pretty surprised. Reconversion, I guess. The good thing all in all, except that no adequate hospitalization plan is linked up with it.

* * *

There was a rumor today that General Motors had turned out a sedan and that Henry Ford II had a truck halfway out of the assembly line, but the Army could not confirm it.

* * *

Well, that will have to be all, except to say that strike votes are being held everywhere now with no quarter given or taken, and the battle cry is "Vote it out along this line if it takes all winter."

* * *

Take care of yourself and don't hurry home as it is too dangerous.

Love,
DAD

A phenomenon is reported from Detroit. A man hitherto regarded as reliable insists he saw a production line move.

The war crimes commission has rejected a plea to try Alfred Krupp on the ground he is [illegible]. Probably Krupp himself never dreamed he could shake off the responsibility of all the world anguish and blood and suffering by just not feeling well.

Elmer Twitchell says it's interesting to watch everybody coming home from the war with the idea the war is over.

Sherman revised: Peace is hell!

They Were Trying

The Pearl Harbor inquiry reveals that the following Japanese force was on the move toward Pearl Harbor for ten days before the blow:

Two battleships, six carriers, two heavy cruisers, one light cruiser, sixteen destroyers and eleven auxiliaries, preceded by an advance force of three cruisers, twenty submarines, five midget subs and six minor vessels, a total of seventy-two.

Well, the Japs certainly did their best to distract our attention, anyhow.

Proof whether Adolf Hitler is alive or not will be given during the War Crime Trials in Germany. If he is alive he will be sure to scream, "I object!" at some time during the proceedings.

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."—R. J. Thomas, head of the Automobile Workers Union.

The Duration

By Truman Twill

The war is over, but we can't get rid of the duration. That word was bound to haunt.

The worst part of the duration is that everybody is still mad but the Japs and Germans licked and there are too many Russians. So are mad at each other.

Anyone who isn't getting even with somebody had better not blab it, or the boss will snoop his past to see what made him turn out so sweet.

Casualty lists are easier to take in the duration, but no sooner had war ended than highway accidents and deaths shot up like a fighter plane with a rocket in its tail. Give the motorists time and they'll make the atomic bomb look like a life saver.

The arsenal of democracy has been reconverted. Presto . . . and it's like an old-time armory with a boxing show and a free lunch all to close the program. Black eyes for everybody!

They don't hand out medals for distinguished service in the duration, but if you will just ask still someone will give you the bird and belt you shins with a length of gas pipe.

A lot of fighting men who arrived home in time to sweat out the duration with the boys and veterans of the cigaret lines wonder what Sherman had a word for what comes after.

Even the Army and Navy are fighting each other. The War Department shot Eisenhower to the dreadnaughts and got Nimitz on the receiving barrage. And in Washington everyone is pleading with the hot-heads not to shoot the piano player.

We've even got the range on the prime minister of Great Britain, a man named Attlee who was only a prime minister ago that no American would have dreamed of pulling a gun on a British politician for fear it might interfere with lend-lease.

Everything has turned out upside down. L. Lewis is the savior of private enterprise. Notre Dame is on the short end and the boys are holding back post-war full employment for employes.

In the duration, everything is topsy-turvy. It makes you wish for the neatness and the logic of war, where the idea was to clobber the boss and get out of the enemy and always give your allies an even break and the benefit of the doubt.

Insist on Fundamentals!

A Sermonette
By REV. ELDRED JOHNSTON
Pastor of Central Christian Church

Text: "You have a sense of what is vital in religion."—Ro. 2:18.

PAUL, writing to the Jewish Christians in Rome said: "If ye have a sense of what is vital in religion you are a guide to the blind, a light to the darkness, a tutor to the foolish, a teacher to the simple-minded."

How important it is that we have a sense of what is vital in religion. How important it is that we put the main emphasis on the fundamentals. There's a popular phrase, "missing the boat." A lot of churches have missed the boat of fundamentalism. They've missed the Normandie or the Queen Mary and have contented themselves with puttering around in the harbor on little tug-boats going nowhere in particular.

We live in a world that is tottering on the brink of destruction. Economic unrest is apparent on every hand. Misunderstandings and jealousies between nations are mounting. Two of the greatest evils of all times are threatening to rule the world: chaos and cynicism. By Chaos, I mean that a lot of people seem to be lost—confused. A popular expression is: "Well, you just don't know what to think." By cynicism, I mean that many people see the Light—they see the Right thing to do, but they are pessimistic; they don't feel that the Right can be attained or even that it is worthwhile trying.

If there ever was a time in which the Church needed to preach out (and live out) the fundamentals of its religion, it's today. The world is hungry—nay, dying—for clear and inspired guidance. And while it is, what are many churches doing? They are tithing mint and cummin, straining out the gnats and swallowing the camels and elephants?

If the church is to be true to itself—if it is to count in the world today, it must preach, teach and live every day it's one great fundamental truth: Mankind is saved by the grace of God through Jesus Christ.

Almost every outstanding passage in the New Testament is based on that theme: John 3:16; Hebrews 1:1-4; I Cor. 15:53-58.

Sin is man's enemy from the cradle to the grave. Not a day goes by but that we don't have to battle Satan. He tempted the first man, and he'll tempt the last man. He even tempted the Best Man—"He was tempted in all points like as we." Sin is our daily and eternal enemy.

Man, of himself, is unable to defeat sin. Even the great apostle had to confess: "That which I would do I do not; that which I would not do, that I do." We have a will to do what is right—we have a will to not do that which is wrong—but still we don't live that way. Our spirit is willing but our flesh is weak. This creates within us a constant civil war. O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death!

There is only one answer: the only one who can save him who is in the deep hole of sin—the only one who can pull him out—is He who is above. "If I be lifted up I will draw all men unto Me," was the promise of our Saviour. I can't explain how Christ saves us from our sins—I just know He does. God's ways are too deep to be penetrated by our frail human minds. "Christ sent me to preach the gospel: not with wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ should be made of none effect. For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness, but unto us that are saved it is the power of God."

I'm a practical-minded person, so my mind insists that if this is the great fundamental fact of Christianity, then it should make some fundamental difference in our way of life:

1. If this is the fundamental fact, then church divisions based on polity, ritual, and petty doctrines are antiquated and wrong.

2. If this is the fundamental fact, then Chaos does not reign. To those alarmists who are constantly exclaiming that everything is in a hopeless muddle; who try to use such confusion as a cloak for their nefarious imperialistic and economic aggression—to those, we must cry: "You are wrong. Chaos does not reign; God reigns, and His will for mankind can be discovered by anyone who seeks sincerely!"

3. If this is the fundamental fact, then to those pessimists and cynics who cry, "All is hopeless! It is no use trying! Righteousness will fall in this world!" we must cry back: "No! Things are not hopeless, nor is the final outcome even doubtful. The victory of righteousness is certain, for God is on the side of righteousness!"

4. If this is the fundamental fact, then we must remind those who worship science, atomic power, human genius, that the flesh is weak, and those who depend on human ability alone will eventually be led to destruction. Only as man trusts in God and in God's methods can man conquer.

5. If this is the fundamental fact, then daily life with all its pains, its disappointments, its anxieties, takes on new glamour. God is on our side, and it's not useless to spend your life in the quest for goodness. Progress on behalf of righteousness cannot be denied! Every morning becomes Thanksgiving morning! "Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

Reveal Churchill Plea to U. S.

having a very thin diet? Our anxiety is about China. If they collapse our joint dangers would enormously increase. We are sure that the regard of the United States for the Chinese cause will govern your action. We feel that the Japanese are most unsure of themselves."

Drafted Warning

Under Ferguson's questioning, Welles related he returned from the Atlantic Charter meeting in August, 1941, two days before the President and drafted a proposed warning to Japan against further aggression.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill had reached an understanding at their meeting that each nation would give Japan such notice.

Mr. Roosevelt returned Aug. 17, 1941, and the same day made to Japanese Ambassador Nomura what Welles termed a "watered down" statement.

Eliminated from the earlier draft was a reference to "the possibility that such further steps may lead to conflict."

Welles said he thought that was removed because the United States was prepared to begin negotiations with Japan.

"It did not alter the purport," Welles volunteered.

When Ferguson referred to the Churchill-Roosevelt understanding for "parallel action" as an "agreement," Welles protested it was not an agreement.

Just a Promise

"It was a promise by the President to the prime minister that this country would make a declaration to Japan," he said.

Ferguson wanted to know why, in a message to congress Aug. 21, 1941, reference to the parallel action "was omitted."

Welles recalled that American officials were trying to start negotiations with the Japanese again to prevent war and it was felt "publication would not be conducive to successful results."

Ferguson presented a photographed copy of the New York Times for Aug. 13, 1941 which carried a Tokyo story telling of joint action by the British and American ambassadors in telling Japan that in a threat to the independence of Thailand, Britain and the U. S. would immediately meet any steps Japan might take "move for move."

The senator asked Welles how he could account for "the fact that parallel action" was being taken that early.

Welles said it had been the policy for this government to take parallel acton in cases affecting nations resisting aggression.

Ferguson also read from a Times' article of Jan. 27, 1942 dealing with a Churchill speech in the house of commons. This account referred to talks Churchill was said to have had with Mr. Roosevelt at the Atlantic charter meeting when the prime minister said he was assured this country, even if not attacked, would come into the war in the far east.

Welles said that at no time had he heard of such a discussion.

Look Into Meeting

Republicans of the Pearl Harbor committee dug deeper into the 1941 Atlantic Charter meeting of the late President D. Roosevelt and Winston Churchill.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) told a reporter he is looking specifically for any sign that a military commitment might have been made in the meeting four months before the Japanese attack catapulted this country into war.

Available for questioning on this and other points were former Secretary of State Cordell Hull and his former undersecretary, Sumner Welles.

Both told the committee yesterday they knew nothing about any military agreement.

Both said Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill had reached an understanding to take parallel action in warning Japan any further aggression would call for action by the United States and Great Britain to protect their security. Hull and Welles each said there was nothing beyond that, so far as they knew.

But Ferguson said he wanted an explanation of an exhibit in the committee record.

Memo From Leaders

One paragraph of the exhibit, a memorandum prepared for President Roosevelt on Nov. 27, 1941 by Gen. George C. Marshall, then Army chief of staff, and Admiral Harold R. Stark, then chief of naval operations, said:

"After consultation with each other, United States, British and Dutch military authorities in the Far East agreed that joint military counteraction against Japan should be undertaken only in case Japan attacks or directly threatens the territory or mandated territory of the United States, the British commonwealth, or the Netherlands East Indies, or should the Japanese move forces into Thailand west of 100 degrees east or south of 10 degrees north, Portuguese Timor, New Caledonia, or the Loyalty islands."

Hull and Welles testified they had heard no possibility of an attack on Pearl Harbor mentioned in the late, critical months of 1941.

"Are you familiar with that agreement?" Ferguson asked, quoting the above memorandum.

When Welles said he knew nothing of it, Ferguson demanded: "How could you carry on your duties as acting secretary of state without such information?" Welles was acting secretary at brief periods in 1941 when Hull was ill.

Welles replied he simply acted as a "mouthpiece" for the President or Secretary Hull.

Fathers Are Learning

Most of the fathers who are returning now from service and taking up their postponed duties with their offsprings are finding out just what their wives meant when they wrote about all the mischief the little darlings could think up not to mention the innumerable questions they ask or the number of times they dog your footsteps and ask something over and over. Yes fathers are finding out for themselves.

Understanding Of Foreign Peoples Would Aid World

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP World Traveler

This trip which you and I are taking is far more than a sightseeing tour or a search for sensations, although we shall be dealing with those phases as well.

One of our chief aims will be to acquire real acquaintance with the peoples of the various countries — especially those nations which have been turned topsy-turvy by war. And by real acquaintance I mean the sort of understanding we establish with our next-door neighbor by garden-fence confidences about our flower-beds, our babies and our golf.

D. Mackenzie

If you will stop to check on the countries about which you entertain serious suspicions, I will gamble you'll find that in many cases the doubts are due to misunderstanding rather than to exact knowledge of wrong-doing or intention to do wrong.

Lack of acquaintance can be a mischievous thing, even when matters of small consequences are involved. I'll never forget my first few weeks in England as a young newspaperman. I was going about with a chip on my Yankee shoulder because I found the language and mode of life somewhat different from that back home.

It Still Goes Up

It irks me no end to hear people referring to elevators as lifts. It made me mad because Englishmen didn't drink water for breakfast. I thought the English were a very strange and backward people.

Then gradually it dawned on me that "elevator" sounded just as strange to English ears as "lift" did to mine, and that the machine went up and down just the same, no matter what you called it.

It was really illuminating when Philip Gibbs (now Sir Philip), the famous writer, remarked to me over the breakfast table as I quaffed my water:

"Mac, it makes me positively ill to see you drinking that filthy cold stuff for breakfast".

My experience of 30 years in the foreign service of the Associated Press is that it's because individuals don't understand one another that governments fall out. Real and sympathetic understanding removes these dangers.

I've labored this in order to provide the foundation for a more important point. This is that the peace of the world depends on mutual acquaintance of the various people. In no other way can we make peace stick.

It's An Old Story

That's not an original idea with me. I've had it hammered into me persistently for the past quarter of a century by Kent Cooper, executive director of The Associated Press. "KC" believes that as things stand acquaintance best can be achieved through the publication of thoroughly humanized news, objectively reported by understanding men. My long experience in the foreign field has made me certain that he is right.

It would be grand if all you good folk could go along with me in person as well as in spirit and see things for yourself. But since you can't, I'm going to do my best to move you across the seas and into the inner circles.

DRIVER FOUND NOT GUILTY

Elmer G. Jolliff, 49, of near Marysville was found not guilty of driving with insufficient brakes in a hearing in municipal court Friday and the case was dismissed because of lack of evidence. Jolliff was arrested by city police Monday afternoon following an accident on South Prospect street at Bellefontaine avenue when William Michel, 75, of 512 Pearl street was knocked down while crossing the street. Mr. Michel suffered abrasion below both knees and was treated at City hospital. Jolliff pleaded not guilty when arraigned in court Tuesday.

Slight damage resulted from a fire at the home of Mrs. Euler Merchant of 682 Woodrow avenue at 8:49 p. m. yesterday. Soot in the chimney ignited and scorched the surrounding wallpaper. The call was answered in the chief's car.

HOG SUPPLY SWELLS AS RATIONING ENDS

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 24—A swelling hog supply lent significance to meat rationing's end and encouraged the livestock trade this week as the swine run for November promised to double October's receipts.

Salable receipts plus hogs shipped direct to packers totaled 248,500 for the first 15 marketing days of this month as against 128,500 for the comparable period in October.

"Generally speaking hog receipts are heavier than expected and have been increasing the past two weeks," a stockyards spokesman observed. "Also, they're coming earlier than we anticipated."

Later Than Usual

Normally the heavy run of fall hogs begins in October, but this year authorities knew farmers were making their hogs heavier, which means feeding them longer.

Due to soft, late corn and farmers' temptation to delay hog marketings to take advantage of 1946 income tax cuts, authorities thought a substantial expansion in trade might not come until December, or possibly January.

"Although hog numbers are far under a year ago, the weights are heavier, which helps pick up the pork shortage," the spokesman said. "For instance, last week receipts were about 24 per cent under a year ago, but due to heavier weights the total of federally inspected slaughter tonnage was only about 17 per cent lower."

Barrows and gilts marketed in Chicago last week averaged 262 pounds, 31 pounds heavier than the corresponding week last year.

Hog receipts for four days this week totaled 65,500, while receipts for the same four days last week were 62,500.

Prices Go Up

(USDA)—Trade in cattle was generally active and the week saw price rises in many kinds. Medium and good grades of killer steers were unevenly strong to 50 cents higher, strictly medium to good heifers gained 25 to 50 cents, cows were 25 to 40 cents up and most bulls and good and choice stockers and feeders picked up 25 cents.

Hog prices held steady on all weights and classes. The quality and finish of new crop receipts was unusually high and made for a minimum of sorting.

Three consecutive days of active markets boosted fat lamb prices 25 to 40 cents, with extremes up 50 cents over a week ago. On each of the first three days of the week this class sold steady to mostly 15 cents higher. Other classes failed to share this advance but sold strong in a dependable trade.

600,000 Steel Men Near Strike Vote

By The Associated Press

The steel industry—which has stated repeatedly it cannot meet wage increase demands unless steel prices are raised — today studied in silence OPA's refusal to approve higher prices.

Wage negotiations have been stalled one month.

Six hundred thousand CIO United Steelworkers members were preparing to hold a strike vote in 766 steel, iron and aluminum plants next Wednesday to back up their demand for a $2 daily increase in pay.

The union said the next move was up to the industry. A steelworkers' spokesman said that if a strike was authorized he "didn't know" whether action would be delayed until the new year, when OPA again will consider the granting of price increases.

The leading steel company, U. S. Steel Corp., said it would have no comment on the OPA action until after an industry meeting, a week or ten days hence, with OPA Administrator Chester Bowles.

Printers Strike At Portsmouth Times

By The Associated Press

PORTSMOUTH, O., Nov. 24—A strike of union printers today halted publication of The Portsmouth Times.

Grover Barr, president of Local 637, International Typographical union, said that after several weeks of negotiations over a new contract the printers voted to strike in support of a demand for a wage scale of $1.43 an hour ($53.63 a week).

R. F. Fletcher, the paper's business manager, said that when the contract with the printers expired last October the union requested a scale of $1.35 an hour ($50.63 a week) for a 37½ hour week. That request later was raised to $1.38 2-3 an hour ($52.00 a week). The company, he said, first offered $1.30 an hour and last night increased its offer to $1.35 an hour. At that time the union asked for the $1.43 an hour. The present scale is $1.25 an hour ($46.88 a week).

Harold Clark of Columbus, ITU representative, and Roy D. Moore of Canton, general manager of the Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., attended the negotiations meeting last night.

Chiang Threatening Strategic Red City

By The Associated Press

CHUNGKING, Nov. 24 — The newspaper World Daily News said today mechanized units of the Nationalist 12th army have surrounded strategic Chinhsien on the Peiping-Mukden railroad 100 miles north of the great wall.

Communists repeatedly have forecast that the city would be the scene of their first big-scale fight against the Nationalist drive, but the newspaper reported only "unorganized" Red resistance.

The Communistic New Szechwan Daily alleged Chinese Reds have poured into Mukden in strength, and asserted that Gen. Chu Teh, commander-in-chief of the Chinese Communist forces, already has 200,000 men massed in Manchuria, including the Reds' "People's Militia."

ADMIRAL WAGS FLATTOP CASUALTY — Admiral Wags is known through the length, breadth and depth of the Pacific. Yes, even the silent service knows Wags. He is the 13-year-old black cocker spaniel, friend and boon companion of Vice Adm. F. C. Sherman. After seeing oodles of action in the Pacific, Admiral Wags came to New York for the Navy Day celebration aboard the carrier Enterprise. On the eve of the great event the canine fell from the flight deck to the hanger deck and half of his body became paralyzed. As the Navy has no veterinarians, the Army puts Wags in a stretcher splint, as can be seen above. Today the dog has made an 85 per cent recovery and soon will be as good as new—well, as good as 13 years old anyway.

CARE SAVED THIS NAZI VICTIM — Among the countless babies to suffer under the Nazi yoke was the youngster pictured here. When found in a concentration camp last July, the nine-months-old baby (top) was close to death from malnutrition. After a few months of excellent care in Sweden, the child became the healthy, normal baby pictured above (bottom). He is but one of 31,000 ill and starved victims of Nazidom to benefit from a health program carried out by Sweden in cooperation with UNRRA.

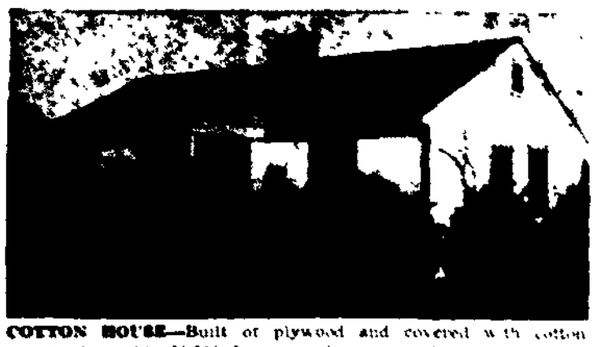
Cotton Houses Built in Dixie



COTTON HOUSE—Built of plywood and covered with cotton canvas duck this $1,500 five-room house may be the answer to the South's housing problem. Says E H Wise of Coffee county, Ala., who owns one of the houses. "It'll still be here when I pass on, and it's so warm my grandchildren won't have to chop much wood in the winte. time."

ATLANTA — Houses made partly of cotton are in the offing. Experiments with such houses by the Farm Security Administration have led the National Cotton Council to predict wide use of them, especially in the south with its need of low cost housing.

Five-room cotton houses can be built for less than $1,500. They could replace the Tobacco Road cabins of the south, but may also be utilized as beach cottages or mountain cabins.

People who have lived in them say the cotton houses are cooler in summer and warmer in winter than comparable frame dwellings.

The houses are built of plywood and covered with cotton canvas duck. The duck is only $150 of the total cost.

The canvas is glued on with a special fire-resistant compound and is nailed only at the seams.

Region Five of the FSA Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina, began experimenting with cotton duck housing in 1939.

Two such houses were built in Coffee county, Ala.; an office building was put up on a farm project near Blackmon, Fla., and six shelters were constructed for farm workers at Pahokee, Fla.

There was no maintenance on the Coffee county dwellings. Yet the cotton duck is still in good condition, the FSA now reports.

After five years, however, both units required a coat of paint, and the roof of each hut developed a split in two places. The splits were easily patched with cotton duck. There was no splitting on the sidewalls.

The labor shelters in Florida, painted after three years, are in excellent condition. Like wood, cotton duck requires periodic painting, FSA says.

FSA, whose program permits tenant farmers and sharecroppers to acquire their own farms and homesteads with 40 years to pay, estimates 470,598 new or repaired homes in region V are needed now that the war is over. Eighty-three per cent of these farmsteads, it is estimated, need new dwellings.
